 - (b) may, insofar as the collective agreement applies to the employees and notwithstanding anything contained in the collective agreement, terminate the agreement at any time by giving the employer at least 2 months' notice in writing.
- (4) Subsection (3) does not apply to a trade union that becomes certified for a unit in respect of which it was already bound by a collective agreement negotiated as a result of voluntary collective bargaining.

(3) Where an arbitrator, arbitration board or other body determines that there are reasonable grounds for extending the time for taking any step in a grievance process or arbitration procedure set out in a collective agreement, the arbitrator, arbitration board or other body may, notwithstanding the terms of the collective agreement, grant an extension, even after the expiration of the time, if, in its opinion, the other party would not be unduly prejudiced by the extension.

(4) An arbitrator, arbitration board or other body may interpret, apply and give relief in accordance with an enactment relating to employment matters notwithstanding any conflict between the enactment and the collective agreement.

174 An employers' organization shall not be registered as an agent for collective bargaining if its administration, management or policy is, in the opinion of the Board,

- (a) dominated by a trade union, or
- (b) influenced by a trade union so that the employers' organization's fitness to represent employers for the purposes of collective bargaining is impaired.

1988 cL-1.2 s172

Issue of registration certificate

175(1) When the Board is satisfied with respect to the matters referred to in section 168 and satisfied, after considering any other relevant matter, that the employers' organization should be registered, the Board shall grant a registration certificate to the applicant employers' organization.

(2) The registration certificate shall state

- (a) the name of the registered employers' organization,
- (b) the name of the trade union or trade unions in the group of trade unions with which the registered employers' organization may bargain collectively, and
- (c) the part of the construction industry in respect of which the registered employers' organization and the group of trade unions may bargain collectively.

(3) When 2 or more trade unions are named in a registration certificate as a group of trade unions, this Act applies to the group of trade unions with respect to the registration, the settlement of disputes, strikes or lockouts, and the administration of the collective agreement as if they were a single trade union.

(4) When the Board grants a registration certificate in respect of a group of trade unions, the trade unions in the group shall forthwith establish rules and procedures for the administration of the registration certificate, collective bargaining in respect of that registration certificate and the administration of any collective agreements entered into with the registered employers' organization.

(5) If the group of trade unions fails to establish adequate rules and procedures in accordance with subsection (4), the Board may establish rules and procedures and those rules and procedures are binding on each trade union within the group of trade unions.

(6) An application to the Board to establish rules and procedures under subsection (5) may be made by the registered employers' organization, any employer bound by the registration certificate who is adversely affected by any failure to establish adequate rules and procedures, or any trade union within the group of trade unions.

(3) Subject to a declaration under subsection (4), the parties to an agreement referred to in subsection (2)(b), including the parent trade union or the other local trade union of the parent trade union, are bound by the registration certificate and the terms of the registration collective agreement in the same manner as if the local trade union referred to in subsection (2)(a) had entered into the agreement referred to in subsection (2)(b) on its own behalf.

(4) The Board may, on the application of any affected person or party, declare that subsection (3) does not apply to the agreement referred to in subsection (2)(b), if the Board is satisfied that the agreement is an agreement whose terms would not undermine registration bargaining or the registration collective agreement.
